

Important developments in the campaign. The most important news is that the Japanese have begun to close in on Kuropatkin and have by their usual tactics of massing a greatly superior force gained an important advantage near An-Ping, sending the Russian outposts back on their main body occupying important positions, all with comparatively little loss.

Whether this is really the beginning of a great battle, which will decide the fate of the war, or is simply a movement to more securely set the trap in which Kuropatkin seems to be enveloped, the information at hand at present is too meagre to develop.

The best opinion here favors the latter supposition.

So far as known, the losses in the latest fighting have not been heavy on either side.

At Port Arthur the Japanese seem to be working with the same desperate deadly persistency, which has marked this siege from the beginning. They seem to be working along well defined plans, from which nothing divers them. Golden Hill now seems to be the point of attack. With this position in their hands Port Arthur will be in their mercy, and the fate of the war, or there, will be sealed.

Further reports of the engagement have not yet been received.

At least two divisions of infantry was advancing against the Russian positions, at the Japanese and the engagement have not yet been received.

Assurances have been received from St. Petersburg, which makes it extremely probable that there will be further vexatious interference with British commerce. It can be said safely that any further action along this line will lead to action by Great Britain, in which will settle beyond controversy the rights of both neutrals and belligerents.

ADVANCE IS RESUMED.

Kuroki and Not Kuropatkin the Aggressor, and Latter Attacked From Three Points.

(By Associated Press.)

ST. PETERSBURG, August 26.—After four weeks' interval, the Japanese have resumed their advance against General Kuropatkin's positions. The opposing armies are in contact east and west of Yang and have been in progress since Wednesday. Since the rains ceased, a week ago, there have been continued intimations that General Kuropatkin was about to assume the offensive, but, instead of that, was the Japanese who attacked the Russian command's eastern and southern positions.

A Japanese column, thirty thousand strong, was reported on Tuesday to be marching up the right bank of the Lianhe River, which would seem to indicate that three Japanese armies are co-operating in enveloping three sides of Liao Yang. From the accounts received, it appears that General Kuroki selected Tantzia-pudzy as the point for his attempt to drive the wedge into Kuropatkin's outer defenses at Anping and Llandianian, which are situated, respectively, ten miles northwest and southwest of Tantzia-pudzy, the latter being on the Lianhe River, eight miles above the confluence of the Taitse River, whence a mountain ridge runs westward. The Japanese were, however, not reported to have crossed the river, but to have moved on the left bank of the river, which was noted in these dispatches several days ago. The capture of this ridge will be the first object of the Japanese, and doubtless will entail serious consequences on the Japanese, who are counting on the superiority of their mountain guns. If they are successful, the Russian positions at Anping and Llandianian will become precarious.

The Japanese are supported from Gutzaiy, three miles higher up the Lianhe River, and along the Taitse River, as shown in the dispatch reporting that the Russian front south of the Taitse River was broken. The Japanese advance was simultaneous, moving on Llandianian along the high road, as reported from Liao Yang last night, and by the fact that the Japanese were moving on the Llandianian along the high road from Sialindzy, ten miles northeast of Hui Cheng. That General Kuropatkin had foreseen these various moves is shown by the manner in which the attack on Tantzia-pudzy was met and by the repulse of the Japanese at Sialindzy.

HEAVY FIGHTING.

General Kuropatkin Reports a Series of Small Engagements Wednesday and Thursday.

(By Associated Press.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 26.—Emperor Nicholas has received the following dispatch, under date of August 25, from General Kuropatkin:

"On August 24th, a Japanese battalion delivered an attack in the valley of Sandukhsy from the heights of Tantzia-pudzy. The Russian batteries were checked at 3 P. M., at Llandian, by a Russian company, five men of which were wounded."

"The same day, two Russian companies successfully resisted the advance of the Japanese, who were attacking Sunolun, where the Japanese suspended operations when our reinforcements arrived. The Russian batteries were, however, killed or wounded."

"On the evening of August 24, the Japanese advanced against our positions, occupied by the heights to the southeast of Llandianian, and proceeded to construct batteries and to entrench themselves on the heights."

"At 5:45 A. M., August 25, one of the enemy's batteries opened fire on the village of Kofusky. A Russian battery returned the fire successfully, notwithstanding the considerable distance between the Japanese and the Russian positions, compelling the Japanese to take to cover."

"Since the morning of August 25, a force of the enemy, consisting of one brigade of infantry, with four batteries, has marched through the Sandukhsy Valley and reached the heights of the valley, apparently suffering heavy loss, and was forced to retire."

"On the morning of August 25, the enemy placed in position two batteries in front of Llandianian and bombarded our positions during the night. The exchange of fire, the enemy's infantry appeared from Zrakhsy, moving in the direction of Kofusky, and the Russian batteries quickly silenced the Japanese guns."

"About 11 o'clock in the morning, our advance post was ordered to retire on the main position, and the Japanese infantry occupied the heights west of Kofusky, near Tassintun."

"Towards noon, Japanese guns were observed near Zrakhsy, with about a division of infantry. Four batteries were seen to be concentrated between Kamin and Katsai."

"At about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, a Japanese mountain battery, which was advancing along a ridge towards Tassintun, was prevented from occupying the position held by another battery, which was silenced after a short fight."

"At 2 in the afternoon, large bodies of the enemy were observed constructing entrenchments on the heights west of Kofusky, and at 4 o'clock, a Japanese mountain battery appeared on the heights west of Kofusky, but was obliged to retire."

"At 5 P. M., a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

You'll make a good catch if you hit up against this store today.

$20.00 Suits at $12.50.

$15.00 and $18.00 Suits at $9.75.

Some good fall weights to be had at the same price.

15 per cent. to 25 per cent. off on many lines of underwear.

Negligee Shirts shorn of all signs of profit to us.

Lot $8.00 and Patent Leather Shoes at $3.85.

School Suits and Dressy Suits for boys around half price.

O.H. BERRY & CO.

MEN & BOYS OUTFITTERS.

least two divisions of infantry was advancing against the Russian positions, at the Japanese and the engagement have not yet been received.

"Further reports of the engagement have not yet been received."

BATTLE NEAR LIAO YANG.

Big Engagement Reported to Have Commenced Twenty Miles From This Place.

(By Associated Press.)

LIAO YANG, August 24.—A big battle commenced today twenty miles east of Liao Yang. The Russian force from the Taitse River was engaged.

The fighting which began yesterday continues today at Llandianian, twenty-three miles southeast of Liao Yang. The Japanese are attacking.

Assurances have been received from St. Petersburg, which makes it extremely probable that there will be further vexatious interference with British commerce. It can be said safely that any further action along this line will lead to action by Great Britain, in which will settle beyond controversy the rights of both neutrals and belligerents.

ADVANCE IS RESUMED.

Kuroki and Not Kuropatkin the Aggressor, and Latter Attacked From Three Points.

(By Associated Press.)

ST. PETERSBURG, August 26.—After four weeks' interval, the Japanese have resumed their advance against General Kuropatkin's positions. The opposing armies are in contact east and west of Yang and have been in progress since Wednesday. Since the rains ceased, a week ago, there have been continued intimations that General Kuropatkin was about to assume the offensive, but, instead of that, was the Japanese who attacked the Russian command's eastern and southern positions.

A Japanese column, thirty thousand strong, was reported on Tuesday to be marching up the right bank of the Lianhe River, which would seem to indicate that three Japanese armies are co-operating in enveloping three sides of Liao Yang. From the accounts received, it appears that General Kuroki selected Tantzia-pudzy as the point for his attempt to drive the wedge into Kuropatkin's outer defenses at Anping and Llandianian, which are situated, respectively, ten miles northwest and southwest of Tantzia-pudzy, the latter being on the Lianhe River, eight miles above the confluence of the Taitse River, whence a mountain ridge runs westward. The Japanese were, however, not reported to have crossed the river, but to have moved on the left bank of the river, which was noted in these dispatches several days ago. The capture of this ridge will be the first object of the Japanese, and doubtless will entail serious consequences on the Japanese, who are counting on the superiority of their mountain guns. If they are successful, the Russian positions at Anping and Llandianian will become precarious.

The Japanese are supported from Gutzaiy, three miles higher up the Lianhe River, and along the Taitse River, as shown in the dispatch reporting that the Russian front south of the Taitse River was broken. The Japanese advance was simultaneous, moving on Llandianian along the high road, as reported from Liao Yang last night, and by the fact that the Japanese were moving on the Llandianian along the high road from Sialindzy, ten miles northeast of Hui Cheng. That General Kuropatkin had foreseen these various moves is shown by the manner in which the attack on Tantzia-pudzy was met and by the repulse of the Japanese at Sialindzy.

HEAVY FIGHTING.

General Kuropatkin Reports a Series of Small Engagements Wednesday and Thursday.

(By Associated Press.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 26.—Emperor Nicholas has received the following dispatch, under date of August 25, from General Kuropatkin:

"On August 24th, a Japanese battalion delivered an attack in the valley of Sandukhsy from the heights of Tantzia-pudzy. The Russian batteries were checked at 3 P. M., at Llandian, by a Russian company, five men of which were wounded."

"The same day, two Russian companies successfully resisted the advance of the Japanese, who were attacking Sunolun, where the Japanese suspended operations when our reinforcements arrived. The Russian batteries were, however, killed or wounded."

"On the evening of August 24, the Japanese advanced against our positions, occupied by the heights to the southeast of Llandianian, and proceeded to construct batteries and to entrench themselves on the heights."

"At 5:45 A. M., August 25, one of the enemy's batteries opened fire on the village of Kofusky. A Russian battery returned the fire successfully, notwithstanding the considerable distance between the Japanese and the Russian positions, compelling the Japanese to take to cover."

"Since the morning of August 25, a force of the enemy, consisting of one brigade of infantry, with four batteries, has marched through the Sandukhsy Valley and reached the heights of the valley, apparently suffering heavy loss, and was forced to retire."

"On the morning of August 25, the enemy placed in position two batteries in front of Llandianian and bombarded our positions during the night. The exchange of fire, the enemy's infantry appeared from Zrakhsy, moving in the direction of Kofusky, and the Russian batteries quickly silenced the Japanese guns."

"About 11 o'clock in the morning, our advance post was ordered to retire on the main position, and the Japanese infantry occupied the heights west of Kofusky, near Tassintun."

"Towards noon, Japanese guns were observed near Zrakhsy, with about a division of infantry. Four batteries were seen to be concentrated between Kamin and Katsai."

"At about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, a Japanese mountain battery, which was advancing along a ridge towards Tassintun, was prevented from occupying the position held by another battery, which was silenced after a short fight."

"At 2 in the afternoon, large bodies of the enemy were observed constructing entrenchments on the heights west of Kofusky, and at 4 o'clock, a Japanese mountain battery appeared on the heights west of Kofusky, but was obliged to retire."

"At 5 P. M., a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."

"On August 26, the Japanese continued their advance against our positions, and at 10 o'clock, a Japanese force of 15,000 men, with 12 batteries, was observed advancing towards the heights of Tantzia-pudzy, but was forced to retire after a short fight."